Dear Master Wang,

This year I enthusiastically agreed to co-chair our annual 2020 In the Pink of Health Luncheon. Unfortunately, we had to cancel the luncheon due to the current state of our economy and the COVID-19 virus. In lieu of the event, I'm glad to report that we have been able to pivot our fundraising efforts to an online donor campaign. I'm asking for your support of our Donor Giving Campaign and becoming an In the Loop Donor.

Your donation will have DOUBLE the impact! We have secured a generous donor who will MATCH ALL FUNDS RAISED, $1 for $1 through December 31, 2020. Donor Recognition with your company logo or name will be listed on our website, social media, and newsletter communications.

Project Mammogram has saved the lives of many and given peace of mind to many more. This ongoing program of the Foundation has served over 10,000 residents since its inception. Qualification for services is based on income level, lack of insurance and residence within Northeast Harris, East Montgomery, and Liberty counties. One hundred (100%) of funds raised remain locally in the counties served.

Decreasing the incidence of late stage breast cancer diagnosis through free-to-the-patient outreach, education, preventative diagnostic screenings (mammograms, ultrasounds, biopsies) and other breast service for those who qualify.

Being In the Loop solidifies your commitment to making an impact in the lives of those in most need of these lifesaving services: screening and diagnostic mammograms, ultrasounds, and biopsies as well as other breast services.

Commit to being In the Loop and with our donor match Double your impact! Attached is a fillable donor form or you can donate online at <https://www.betterunite.com/nehf-becomeanintheloopdonor>.

With gratitude,
Carol A. Prince

Tai Chi: Balance in Motion

This ancient alternative medicine may offer many health benefits, including improved coordination and more restful sleep. By Eric Metcalf, MPH Medically Reviewed by Cynthia Haines, MD

When you think of martial arts, images of experts breaking boards or perhaps Chuck Norris teaching bad guys a lesson may come to mind.

But an alternative medicine practice called tai chi — which has roots in a centuries-old Chinese martial art — is experiencing a new wave of popularity. Instead of promoting the practice as a type of self-defense, Eastern practitioners promote tai chi as a way of bringing balance to your body, and Western medical researchers are busy exploring how this form of alternative medicine may help prevent and treat illnesses and injuries.

What Is Tai Chi?

According to legend, Chinese monks began practicing tai chi both to increase their ability to hold meditative poses and protect their monasteries from invaders. While performing tai chi, the participant smoothly proceeds through a flow of movements that are said to mimic the motions of animals such as the tiger and crane.

From the Chinese medicine standpoint, a vital energy called "qi" should constantly be circulating through your body. However, it can become blocked and stagnant, which disrupts your health — practicing tai chi is said to improve the flow of the qi energy.

Principles that are emphasized in the practice of this alternative medicine include:

- Balance. You maintain good body alignment while moving from foot to foot.
- Relaxation. You concentrate on your movement while keeping your mind calm and clear.
- Coordination. You learn to move your body through complex motions while maintaining good posture.

This form of alternative medicine is growing in popularity. According to the National Center for Complementary and Alternative Medicine (NCCAM), a recent survey revealed that an estimated 2.3 million adults had practiced tai chi in the previous year.

How Tai Chi Could Improve Your Health

In recent years, researchers have explored the possible effects of tai chi on a number of conditions and found that this alternative medicine may be beneficial for these problems:

- Falls. Preventing falls in the elderly community is a major focus of interest in tai chi. In one recent study, researchers reviewed studies on how to prevent falls among older people and found that tai chi was effective in reducing the rate of falls for this age group.
- Sleep disorders. A study in older people found that practicing tai chi for six months compared with low-impact exercise was associated with better sleep and less daytime sleepiness.
- Stroke. A recent study explored why tai chi might be a helpful alternative medicine for people who have had strokes. The practice is associated with improved balance, lower blood pressure, and elevated mood — all of which were beneficial for people who have survived strokes.
- Knee pain. In another study, one group of older people with osteoarthritis of the knee performed tai chi regularly for 12 weeks, while another group with the same condition did not. Those participating in this alternative medicine reported decreased pain and improvements in physical function and stiffness.

NCCAM recommends that you discuss tai chi with your doctor before participating if you have a medical condition or you haven't exercised in a while. In addition, you might experience muscle soreness when you start or if you perform movements too vigorously.

Because the movements are slow and controlled — focusing on simple poise instead of strength — tai chi makes a helpful meditative activity for any age group.

TAI – CHI – CHUAN - Testimony

Since earning (2nd) Black Belt in Tai – Chi – Chuan on 27 February 2016 from Master Wang – Wang’s Martial Arts, I decided I wanted to reach out and give back to the community by teaching Tai – Chi classes at Retirement Centers in Kingwood, Texas.

Currently I am teaching four (4) times a month or once per week at Watercrest Retirement Center and eight (8) times per month or twice per week at Brookdale Retirement Center. Both facilities are in Kingwood, Texas.

It is personally gratifying to me to see other people’s personal health and well being changed for the better as a result of practicing Tai – Chi.

Elderberry Fights Flu Symptoms

By Dr. Mehmet Oz and Dr. Mike Roizen, MDs

Pliny the Elder was a first century Roman author and naturalist. One of his most famous sayings is: "Truth comes out in wine."

Did he know about elderberry wine? Being a naturalist (and Roman), there's a good chance he did. After all, the health benefits of elderberry syrup for treating the symptoms of the flu have been anecdotally cited since before his time.

But it's only in the last 20 years that the medicinal properties of the elderberry have been scientifically documented.

- A small study published in 1998 showed that 93 percent of flu patients given elderberry syrup (Sambucol) were completely symptom-free within two days, while those taking a placebo recovered in about six days.
- Another controlled study from 1999-2000 in Norway reported that flu patients taking three teaspoons of elderberry syrup four times a day saw their symptoms improve four days earlier than others who took a placebo.
- And a randomized, double-blind trial in 2009 found that 48 hours after flu sufferers took elderberry extract, 28 percent of them were devoid of all flu symptoms and 60 percent showed some symptom relief. Not a single patient in the placebo control group showed any relief.

Elderberries are more bitter than blackberries or raspberries, which is why they're distilled into wines or baked in pies in combination with other berries.

But the concentrated syrup is what you want if you have flu symptoms. As the American Nutrition Association states, "Elderberry extract seems to offer an efficient, safe and cost-effective treatment for influenza."

Raw fruit and vegetables provide better mental health outcomes

The study surveyed more than 400 young adults — an age group with typically the lowest fruit and vegetable consumption and at high risk for mental health disorders. Image: Shutterstock

New study identifies the top 10 raw foods related to better mental health: carrots, bananas, apples, dark leafy greens such as spinach, grapefruit, lettuce, citrus fruits, fresh berries, cucumber, and kiwifruit.

— By University of Otago

Seeking the feel good factor? Go natural.

That is the simple message from University of Otago researchers who have discovered raw fruit and vegetables may be better for your mental health than cooked, canned and processed fruit and vegetables.

Dr. Tamlin Conner, Psychology Senior Lecturer and lead author, says public health campaigns have historically focused on aspects of quantity for the consumption of fruit and vegetables (such as 5+ a day).

However, the study, published in Frontiers in Psychology, found that for mental health in particular, it may also be important to consider the way in which produce was prepared and consumed.

“Our research has highlighted that the consumption of fruit and vegetables in their ‘unmodified’ state is more strongly associated with better mental health compared to cooked/canned/processed fruit and vegetables,” she says.

Dr. Conner believes this could be because the cooking and processing of fruit and vegetables has the potential to diminish nutrient levels.

“This likely limits the delivery of nutrients that are essential for optimal emotional functioning.”

Related: Organic food provides significant environmental benefits to plant-rich diets

For the study, more than 400 young adults from New Zealand and the United States aged 18 to 25 were surveyed. This age group was chosen as young adults typically have the lowest fruit and vegetable consumption of all age groups and are at high risk for mental health disorders.

The group’s typical consumption of raw versus cooked and processed fruits and vegetables were assessed, alongside their negative and positive mental health, and lifestyle and demographic variables that could affect the association between fruit and vegetable intake and mental health (such as exercise, sleep, unhealthy diet, chronic health conditions, socioeconomic status, ethnicity, and gender).

“Controlling for the covariates, raw fruit and vegetable consumption predicted lower levels of mental illness symptomology, such as depression, and improved levels of psychological wellbeing including positive mood, life satisfaction and flourishing. These mental health benefits were significantly reduced for cooked, canned, and processed fruits and vegetables.

“This research is increasingly vital as lifestyle approaches such as dietary change may provide an accessible, safe, and adjuvant approach to improving mental health,” Dr. Conner says.

5 REASONS TO GO VEGETARIAN

IF YOU FIND YOURSELF FEELING CONSTANTLY SLUGGISH, IT MAY BE A SIGN TO SWITCH DIET, SO HERE ARE SOME REASONS TO GO VEGETARIAN...

1. REDUCES RISK OF HEART DISEASE

Meat clogs up arteries to stop blood getting to the heart.

Salads don't.

2. HELPS YOU LOSE WEIGHT

Because of the fat they have in them, meat puts weight on a person's body.

Salads don't.

3. COMPASSION FOR ANIMALS

Meat comes from animals.

Salads don't.

4. BEING VEGETARIAN WOULD HELP END WORLD HUNGER

The animals that the meat comes from need loads of food to be fattened up. Salads don't. That food could go to people who need it.

5. BEING VEGETARIAN SETS A GOOD EXAMPLE TO THE YOUNGER GENERATION

By seeing adults refusing to eat meat, kids may do the same and could adopt a healthy lifestyle, seriously reducing the risk of heart disease and cancer later in life. While feeding little ones meat is quick and easy, it can create a detrimental effect on their health.

Salads don't.

What are the benefits of a clean diet?

We live in a fast paced environment, which spoiled us when it comes to eating. We are always on the go and society has made it a norm to eat on the go. About half of your day is spent in your vehicle, and well you also get hungry. It is now so easy to order food without having to get off your car and just eat it on the go. Have you stopped and asked yourself what really goes into all of these foods? Like they say, "you are what you eat". Sure we make healthier choices when we grocery shopping, but are they really a healthy choice?

It is so easy to fall off the wagon and start "next Monday" with the clean eating, is it worth the risk of waiting? Why not start now? Nowadays, we have so many options to transition into a healthy clean diet. Organic fruits, vegetables, and pastas are now a choice.

No one tells us the risks of eating veggies and fruits that are exposed to pesticides, the effects it can have in your organs nor the permanent damage something so minimal can do. They might be a little more expensive when purchasing but in the long run it will be cheaper for your health.

Veggie beef, veggie poultry and veggie fish are also part of this trend.

Farm animals are also fattened and exposed to chemicals while alive and dead. In order to maintain their shelf life, they must be put through a number of chemicals to preserve its shape, color, and texture.

One cannot quit a habit from one day to another, therefore we must slowly transition our minds and body into a healthier and cleaner lifestyle.

What are the benefits of a Clean Healthy Eating?

- Lowers the risks of Cancer
- Lowers risks of Diabetes
- Prevents (In some cases reverses) Heart disease
- Helps with Weight Loss
- Expands life expectancy
- Less animals are harmed every day.

MARTIAL ARTS FOR STUDENTS WITH ADHD

In ADHD, Benefits of Martial Arts, National

by SDSS October 31, 2016

STUDENTS WITH ADHD CAN BENEFIT GREATLY FROM THE MARTIAL ARTS.

If your child has ADHD, you know how challenging it is for them to succeed in school, in sports, and in many of the activities that come naturally to many of their peers. At the same time, you know how they need activity and a place to channel their energy more than most kids. The good news is, Martial Arts is often the perfect fit for their learning style, providing the individual attention they need and providing a place to channel their extra energy in a positive way.

If your child has been diagnosed with ADHD, you probably see any or all of the following challenges:

- 1 Following directions. This has become an issue for all children in today's media-saturated society, especially since most kids live 24/7 with mobile devices. For children with ADHD, the problem is far worse. They often miss multi-step directions, and even if they catch them, they lose focus and attention while trying to carry them out.
- 2 Impulsivity. Your child may sometimes act without thinking. That, combined with exceptionally high energy, creates challenges in the classroom, in the home, and everywhere in life.
- 3 Inattention. This one seems obvious, but in moments when you're trying to teach a child with ADHD, or help them learn to do things around the house or even teach them basic safety, it becomes apparent just how inattentive this disorder makes them.
- 4 Low frustration tolerance. Life is tough for a student with ADHD, and it becomes worse because they get lots of "you failed" messages in life. Children are not naturally patient, but there is an even lower threshold for kids with ADHD. This makes for an angst-ridden childhood experience.

The problem is, of course, that ADHD makes it even more challenging for the child to cope with these issues. It is just as challenging for the adults who care for them, whether it be parents, teachers, or relatives. Children with ADHD experience a greater degree of conflict in the home and at school. That leads to a growing cycle of frustration, depression, diminished self-esteem, and a lack of peace at home and in school. ADHD is brutal for everyone involved.

Doctors and Psychologists are still learning about this disorder, even today. As of this writing, there is no known "cure," but, there are many ways in which the martial arts can and will help your child be more successful.

- 1 Social development: Students learn values such as Self Discipline, Self Control, Respect, Honesty, and Patience in the martial arts. It is woven into any substantial martial arts experience. Kids learn that they can control their actions and behavior. It doesn't happen overnight, but as they study the martial arts, they learn personal accountability and responsibility.
- 2 Emotional development: Bit by bit, martial arts students discover strategies to control themselves, and not let their ADHD control them. They learn, through genuine accomplishment, that they are capable people who can do great things. When a child earns a new belt rank or wins an award at a competition, they re-discover how good a "win" feels. Particularly for kids with ADHD who may not have scored a "win" in a while, these genuine, real-world accomplishments help them discover that they can and will be successful in life if they work hard enough at it.
- 3 Physical development: Probably the greatest benefit to children with ADHD, the martial arts provides a highly focused outlet that is more than enough to handle their nearly limitless energy. More importantly, success in the martial arts requires focusing that energy in positive ways. students learn to use their whole body in every block and strike. They learn when to turn it "on" and "off." For a child whose internal "engine" is perpetually in high gear, this can be a game changer.

Martial arts vs. team sports

Martial arts has a distinct advantage over team sports for kids with ADHD. In the dojo, each student is on his or her journey toward black belt. The training is highly physical, and exhausting in the most positive way. Kung Fu training involves both individualized feedback and high-repetition, both of which are essential for someone trying to learn despite this disorder.

In a team sports setting, the fast pace of play requires a focus on multiple stimuli. Players have to focus on position, on the ball, on the goal, on the rest of their team, and on the movements of the opposition. For a child with ADHD, this is a Herculean task, leading to frustration or embarrassment. These high-energy kids often bring tremendous speed and energy to the game but are prone to high-profile errors during play because they just can't track the ball or know what to do next.

On the field or the court, kids with ADHD sometimes become "ball hogs," hanging onto the ball too long and trying to do everything by themselves. It appears as selfishness, but it's not. For a child with ADHD, they often don't pass the ball because they don't know where to send it. They, quite literally, cannot see the big picture. In games like baseball or softball, they're often the child who is fast enough to steal a base but is thrown out on a baserunning error because they couldn't track the flow of the game. For children who already has a tough time handling frustration, this can make team sports a negative experience.

Not so in the Martial Arts, where every child learns a small, discrete set of skills at one time, and practices those skills until they are mastered. They learn to focus and control their entire body. They learn to react to input successfully. They learn to spar in a safe environment and discover how to focus their body and mind completely in the moment. This is a life-changing experience for a child with ADHD. As they experience success in the dojo, they translate these lessons to other areas of life.

Small group and individual attention

This is probably the best reason to enroll a child with ADHD in the martial arts as soon as you can. Students receive a combination of small group, semi-private instruction, and group classes designed for their particular developmental level. This is the absolute best learning environment for students in general, but particularly for a child with ADHD. He or she is seen and known every single class. It is "preferential seating" of the highest order because each student receives positive and constructive feedback at consistent, short intervals. The class is fast-paced, highly physical, singularly focused, and changes at regular intervals. Each group class is designed to meet the developmental needs of that particular age level. This eliminates much of the frustration and makes learning fun.

Learning can be fun again

What a relief it will be when your child discovers that learning can be FUN once again. When school is tough, when there is drama at home, when there is conflict with peers, there always seems to be negative energy in the air. You'll watch your child laugh, smile, and feel good about himself or herself as she or he pours all that energy into something positive. They will engage in learning games, run high-energy drills, and push themselves to new limits. One day, take a picture of your child walking out of class and save it. When life brings its challenges, you'll discover that the dojo has become a place where your child can focus his or her energy and find the natural joy that comes with being a kid.

Not a cure, but a life changer

There are no snap "cures" for ADHD, but the Martial Arts can change your child's life for the better. Dramatically. Any parent of a child with ADHD will tell you that life with this disorder is a draining combination of love mixed with discipline, patience seasoned with accountability, and an absolute determination that your child will grow into a successful, happy adult. The martial arts can help you both rediscover and celebrate your child's many gifts. Your child will become himself or herself once again, as you enjoy taking the journey together.

Apples

One apple has the immune-boosting antioxidant equivalent of 1,500 mg of vitamin C. Plus, apples are loaded with protective flavonoids, which may prevent heart disease and cancer.

Strawberries, Raspberries & Blueberries

Nature's answer to a vitamin pill. Berries help keep you healthier with loads of vitamin C, a cell-protecting antioxidant and immune booster.

Grapefruit

Not only is grapefruit loaded with vitamin C, it also contains natural compounds called limonoids, which can lower cholesterol. The red varieties are a potent source of the cancer-fighting substance lycopene.

Cranberries

One serving of cranberries has the time: the amount vitamin C found in broccoli. Cranberries are a natural probiotic, enhancing the body's good bacteria levels and protecting it from foodborne illnesses.

Fresh Ginger Root

Ginger contains gingerol, a natural plant compound that can help fight off infection.

Garlic

The compounds found in garlic have been shown to kill viruses—making us almost three times less likely to get sick. Plus, fresh garlic has more immune-boosting potential than cooked, so to increase the health benefit, add a clove of fresh minced garlic at the end of cooking.

Papayas

A cold-fighting super hero, papaya is packed with 250% of the RDA for vitamin C. Plus, the combination of beta-carotene with vitamins C and E in papaya reduces inflammation throughout the body and can lessen the effects of asthma.

Mangoes

Originally from India, mangoes have been an immune system booster for more than four thousand years. One small mango provides a quarter of your recommended daily allowance for vitamin C, plus vitamins A, E, K and fiber.

Oranges, Clementines & Lemons

A delicious way to increase vitamin C. Make fresh squeezed orange juice, add clementine sections to salads and add lemon to tea.

Sweet Red Peppers

Gram for gram, red bell peppers have twice as much immune-enhancing vitamin C as an orange. Vitamin C is an essential weapon in your flu-fighting food arsenal—it can decrease the duration of a cold by 80 percent and the severity of symptoms like sniffles and cough.

Sweet Potatoes

Sweet potatoes boost the immune system with generous amounts of beta-carotene. Beta-carotene—the vitamin that gives sweet potatoes their orange pigment—converts to vitamin A in the body, which research shows can help fight respiratory infections.

Broccoli, Spinach & Red Onions

Broccoli, spinach and red onions contain high levels of quercetin, a highly potent flu fighter. The best food for quercetin? Red onions. Eat them raw and you'll receive four times the amount found in other produce.
